

Should you rent out roof space for solar panels?

Renting out roof space for solar panels: trouble for homeowners? Solar energy remains very much in the news with the Department of Energy and Climate Change's (Decc) decision to cut subsidies for 'feed-in tariff' payments to households generating electricity with solar panels having been branded 'unlawful' by a High Court judge last month.

Are roof-mounted solar panels safe?

Roof-mounted PV systems offer numerous benefits, including reduced energy costs and a reduced carbon footprint. However, businesses and installers must be aware of the potential risks associated with these systems. As the popularity of solar panels continues to soar, understanding and mitigating this emerging risk is paramount.

What happens if solar panels are installed on a roof?

If the sun is out, the panels will continue to produce electricity. The installation of PV panels on rooftops can add significant weight to the structure. Over time, this extra load can lead to stress on the roof, potentially causing leaks, sagging, or even collapse in extreme cases.

Are solar panels a fire hazard?

PV panels can introduce an obvious ignition source to the roof level, and therefore, increase the risk of fire. Several high-profile fires have occurred in commercial and industrial buildings with rooftop solar PV systems. PV panels installed over a combustible roof system is discouraged as it will almost certainly increase the severity of a loss.

Will adding solar panels to a roof affect insurance coverage?

Adding solar panels to a roof may impact insurance coverage and liability in case of damage or accidents. It is essential to consult with insurance providers to ensure that your policy adequately covers your PV system and potential liabilities.
